

Looking for an exciting career where you can make a difference?

Be a part of New York's solution to combat climate change and improve the health, resiliency, and prosperity of all New Yorkers. NYSERDA is 100% committed to ensuring diversity and equity in our services, policy, planning, and workforce. Come be a part of the action and join our team today.

We seek creative, self-motivated, and knowledgeable individuals to facilitate change through the widespread development and use of innovative technologies to improve the State's energy, economic, and environmental wellbeing. NYSERDA encompasses a robust set of energy efficiency, renewable energy deployment and market and business development programs to serve as New York's primary source of objective energy policy information. Our programs and services provide a vehicle for the State to work collaboratively with businesses, academia, industry, the federal government, the environmental community, public interest groups, and energy market participants.

The New York State Energy Research and Development Authority (NYSERDA) has ongoing recruitment opportunities. Join the Careers email list or check back periodically to learn about new career opportunities.
